Ever considered serving on a board or commission?

Here's your opportunity to attend an innovative training to prepare union members for public service on local boards and commissions.

This is a free, 6 – hour class designed for union members who are interested in serving on boards or commissions, or maybe even running for office.

This course will cover the basic issues that are important for public servants to understand about organized labor, including card-check, PLAs, prevailing wage, big-box bans, outsourcing, retirement security, healthcare and livable wages.

This course will also provide information on how to apply for a local board or commission, explain the requirements and time commitments and introduce union members to opportunities to serve in their communities.

For more information, or to RSVP, please respond via e-mail to Anthony Saavedra at ASaavedra@unionyes.org, or call 619-228-8101, extension 5.
