Ken Seaton-Msemaji is a highly effective political & legislative strategist and organizer.

Ken is the principle founder of the United Domestic Workers of America (UDWA). At the time, UDWA was only the second labor union in the US founded by an African-American. The birth of the Domestic Workers Union was inspired by the late Farm Labor and Civil Rights leader, Cesar Chavez, who recruited Ken along with Fahari Jeffers, Greg Akili, and Raquel Beltran to embark on their historic mission.
